Dump issue is dead duck New rubbish collection starts Monday

As of Monday night the Town Dump, as far as the town hall was concerned, had become a 'dead duck'. That was the way it was described by one onlooker, and his description seems to be accurate.

The Superior Court, in Cambridge, Monday morning, refused to entertain the '10 citizens suit' seeking restraint on the granting of a contract other than to the dump of Mr. Spinazola.

The Town Manager, Monday night, advance the date for the new dump service in Wilmington to next Monday. He has ample power to do this, both under the terms of the Town Manager charter, and the contract which he signed a week ago.

Browning Ferris starts collecting rubbish and garbage Monday morning, in Wilmington. The contract with the firm, originally slated to start on July 1, could be advanced on 24 hours notice, and the Town Manager gave that notice last Monday, after a telephone and other conversation with Paul Godzyk. The Town Manager hopes to get the routes of collection in this week's issue of the Town Crier. Both rubbish and garbage are to be collected at the same time.

The selectmen, Monday night, had very little discussion about the dump situation. After the Town Manager had told of the speed-up of the Browning Ferris date, Banda spoke up to say that he was still against abandoning the present system, and Gillis said he believed the money should be spent in town, and to spend it out of town was improper. Both said the decision should be the town manager's and Chairman Boylen asked for and received a vote to this effect.

Mr. Godzyk, who has been collecting rubbish from the households of Wilmington for many years, was forced to stop by a sudden over-load of work combined with employees leaving for other jobs. Routes on which the customary collection was 10 tons, in the past week had been 60 tons. Godzyk employees had quit, and this meant that Godzyk was becoming greatly overloaded. He had to stop and so notified the Town Manager, Monday.

Town Meeting in August?

There are papers out, asking for a special town meeting. Mrs. Berrigan of lower Main Street, she who was one of the 10 citizens to institute last week's suit against the selectmen, has been active in getting signatures. She and another lady were collecting signatures two weeks ago at the Town Dump. Monday night she and two ladies were in the town hall, apparently ready to give the selectmen a petition for a special town meeting.

At the conclusion of the selectmen's meeting the chairman asked if anyone had anything to say to the board. At that time, indirectly, the message was given that there would be papers filed, but not with the selectmen. Someone said the ladies were afraid the selectmen would "throw them in the waste basket."

It was widely believed, in the Town Hall Monday evening that the ladies were going to use registered mail, to send a request for a special town meeting to the Town Clerk.

The law provides that any 200 citizens can ask for and have a special town meeting called. If the ladies had filed (their intention) with the selectmen Monday the Town Meeting would have to be called before the end of July. The law is that it should be within 45 days of filing.

As of Wednesday nothing had been filed with the Town Clerk. If papers should be filed later the effective date for the special town meeting might be in August.

Comedy aspect

The selectmen's meeting, Monday, was not without its comedy.

Two girls, reporters, working in collaboration, seemed to be determined to get everyone's opinion on the closing of the dump. They worked very secretly. One of them spent 15 or more minutes on the town hall telephone, possible reporting directly to her home office while she interviewed one of the three ladies with the town meeting (?) papers.

Later they worked together on interviewing the selectmen while their meeting was in progress.

They crouched down on the floor - not on their hands and knees, but rather sitting on their heels, and crawled around to interview the selectmen. Their eyes were barely at the level of the table.

They were interfering with the selectmen's meeting, and the chairman told them to stop.

After a few minutes they resumed. They seemed to be possessed with an overwhelming desire to get those interviews.

One of the girls crept over to the Town Manager, and another to Selectman Miceli, and they again began asking questions.

Chairman Boylen, for a second time, had to tell them to stop.

Scouts are broke

The Boy Scouts are trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly and broke. At least that's the word from Leo R. Mullin, president of the Greater Lowell Council, Boy Scouts of America, who reports that of a $128,000 budget, only about half of the operating budget of the council can be provided by the Merrimack Valley United Fund.

Consisting of about 5300 boys in 150 different Cub Packs, Scout Troops and Explorer Posts, the Council has grown so fast in the past few years that it has outstripped the ability of the United Fund to provide the major fraction of its support.

In addition to the United Fund support, the Council receives some of its income from the Annual Scout Show at Cawley Memorial Stadium, a small Trust Fund; from a group of Old Scouts who conduct an annual banquet on behalf of the boys, and from an annual Sustaining Membership Enrollment.

The Council provides a Scouting program in Lowell, Chelmsford, Westford, Dracut, Dunstable, Tyngsboro, Billerica, Tewksbury and Wilmington. Several years ago, it was recognized that most of the growth of the Council membership was in the suburban towns of Lowell, which, in some cases, provided Scouting to more than 25 per cent of the eligible boys. In Lowell, however, only about 10 per cent of the eligible boys were enrolled.

During this period, the national program of Scouting set as a goal, a program called "Boypower '76" which was intended to make Scouting available to a representative one-third of all eligible boys.

Since that time, the Greater Lowell Council has consistently been in the top 10 growth areas of the country, expanding its program from 78 units and 3300 boys then to its present size of 150 units and 5300 boys.

A national five-year grant was provided to assist this growth, the cost of which was not able to be absorbed by the United Fund, since the grant's termination. As a result, it's one of the factors why the United Fund allocation has consistently been less of a percentage of the total budget needed.

Brig. General Costas Caraganis, USA-Retired, has accepted an appointment from Mullin, to head the Council's Annual Sustaining Membership Enrollment which asks the friends and families of Scouting to assist in making up the deficit.

The hearing will be held at the High School Auditorium located on Church Street in the Town of Wilmington beginning at 7:30 p.m. on July 14, 1976.

All persons interested in the project may attend the hearing and will be heard on questions or statements relative to the project. Properly signed statements concerning the project addressed to the Town Manager or the Board of Water and Sewer Commissioners will be accepted up until midnight of the seventh calendar day after the day of the hearing record.

Signed statements received prior to the close of the hearing will be read at the hearing. Representatives of the Town's consulting engineers for the project will be in attendance at the hearing to assist the Town Manager and the Board of Water and Sewer Commissioners in answering questions concerning the project.

The Environmental Assessment Statement, plans and other detailed information, which will include a complete description of the works, cost and financing information, alternatives to the proposed works, and a detailed description of the effects of the works on land use, are available for inspection at the Town Clerk's Office in the Wilmington Town Hall between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, except legal holidays. In addition, copies of the above documents can also be reviewed at the Wilmington Memorial Library Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. and Saturday from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. (The library will be closed on Saturdays during July.)

The first peas wins the Golden Peaspoon

Today is Bunker Hill Day, and in eastern Massachusetts that is the day to serve peas from the family garden. To serve peas, with a sense of pride and accomplish-

That is the tradition - peas from the backyard garden on Bunker Hill Day. The tradition goes a bit further, and decrees that there be peas from the garden and salmon caught from the local river on July 4, but that tradition, sad to relate, has fallen along with a lot of other things into the local river.

But there are back yard gardeners who are proud of their peas, and every year the Town Crier awards a wholly mythical golden peaspoon to that gardener who first has a mess of peas for dinner. Not just a couple of peas - a regular serving for the family.

It has been a Town Crier game now for 20 years, and it has been a lot of fun. Everyone is honored to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and the Town Crier tries to go around and get a picture of the winner.

A couple of years ago one of the readers decided to have some fun on his or her own part. A couple of large tablespoons, golden in color, arrived in the mail - anonymously. They were put in a drawer or a closet or something, and only the Lord knows where they are now - but they are probably alongside that picture of Aunt Mame, or somebody who has been missing for some years, and will eventually be found.

This year there is also something about which one can chuckle. A lady has provided it.

She is Marian Smith Thibeau, former Wilmington resident, who now lives near Washington DC. She continues to receive the Town Crier.

Marian, two weeks ago, mailed to the Town Crier in a plastic case a peapod from her garden. Presumably it is from her garden, down there in Maryland. Positively it was two weeks before Bunker Hill Day.

The lady has been disqualified, sad to relate. She did not certify that she had peas, from her garden, and enough for dinner. Besides she now enjoys a southern climate. But it is a lot of fun.

The winner, this year, came in really early. It seems to be an early year for garden peas, because he was one of three early contestants.

JOEY DUGGAN: And fresh peas from his garden.

Roger Robicheau of 14 Marcus Road, Wilmington has a nice garden surrounded by white oak trees. The garden gets the morning sun, and the afternoon sun, but it must suffer from having those trees about it.

Roger served peas for dinner, Friday noon. That's something of a record. Friday noon was the 11th of June, six days before Bunker Hill Day.

Unless there is another contender, whose claims are earlier than those of Roger's, he will be proclaimed next week as the owner, this year of the entirely mythical and honorary Golden Peaspoon.

Other early contestants were Joey Duggan of 23 Brentwood Avenue and Ralph Peterson of 146 Salem Street. Ralph has a wonderful garden, but the peas were not ready until Monday. Joe and his mother picked peas Sunday, a whole basketfull. They put it aside, to bring down to the Town Crier for proof. That meant a Monday pea dinner.

Perhaps some day there will be a dinner for the Golden Peaspoon winners. Everyone bring their own peas. That could be an event. Formally written cards, engraved, and down the left hand lower corner the letters BYOP.

Mistakenly omitted

Last week's Town Crier contained a list of recent graduates of Shawheen Tech. The name of one Wilmington graduate was inadvertently overlooked.

Selectmen unhappy over town square proposal

THE PROPOSAL FOR WILMINGTON SQUARE: As shown last Thursday in the hearing. There would be a new bridge which would be over the railroad and over a re-located Main Street. The post office is shown, at right, above Church Street, and to the left of the proposal for a new Route 129.

The public hearing in the Wildwood School, last week, on an Alternate to Route 129 was attended by about 130 persons. None of the selectmen were present, an entirely understandable point, because the hearings are repeatedly a discussion of the same points.

Last Thursday's hearing discussed in detail each of the things that might happen, in any of the places where any of the four current proposals might locate the alternative to Route 129. There were plans and there were more plans. Some showed the Fairmont Avenue section, and were studiously observed by people from that area. Others showed for instance, a proposal to straighten out West Street near Westdale Avenue, using the right of way that the town bought 20 years ago for a water main.

The West Street project, like others, is merely tentative. If it should be put into effect it would mean the moving of half a dozen homes, starting with the Downs home, located on a hill overlooking West Street, and through to Lowell Street.

Monday night in their meeting the selectmen discussed the plan for Wilmington Square, in which Church Street/Burlington Avenue would have a new bridge, and Main Street would be on a different level, but raised up to pass over the railroad station.

It is quite a proposal, and the selectmen agreed that they did not like it. Their preference is for Number 15 - the "no change" highway.

no meetings until August

The Wilmington selectmen will not have any meetings until sometime in August. So they voted Monday night. Of course there can be an occasion for a special meeting, which can be called.

They have also voted to use a different style of recording the minutes of the meeting. The clerk will now keep only a record of the votes.

The records, in the past, have recorded "every laugh and giggle" to quote Mr. Miceli. That person, in the past was a selectman who would correct the record, time and again, just for that purpose. Mr. Miceli has had a change of heart, as the result of an observation some time ago by Harold Melzar, past Town Manager.

The selectmen, Monday night, also approved the construction of a home on Lee Street, which is off Glen Road. There had been opposition by neighbors.

Another subject discussed briefly, Monday, was the proposal for another Little League Park, to be called MacGillivray Park. There has been discussion with the schools, on the possibility of such a place between the West Intermediate and the Boutwell Street schools. No decision has been made.

Most of the discussion was by selectmen Gillis and Boylen. Boylen thought it better to have such a park on town owned property, as distinct from school property, and this was voted.

Yard sales, which the selectmen allow by permit, will have a different manner of handling. The chairman will have the power to vote for other selectmen, so that yard sales will not have to be discussed in the selectmen's meetings, unless there is a distinct problem.

Foster parents needed in area

935-7500.

At present there are not enough foster homes in the Wilmington area to care for our local children in need of foster care.

Because of this, children have to be placed in other areas, sometimes distant. This makes maintaining the much needed contact with their natural family difficult.

The greatest need is for homes for siblings (family groups) and teenagers who need a lot of understanding and patience.

Foster parents receive payment for room, board and clothing for each foster child. Medical expenses are also provided.

“MY WIFE THOUGHT I WAS CRAZY!”

She thought I was crazy when I told her. I said, "Honey, we're replacing our old heating system with a new energy saving, economical heating system from the Lowell Gas Company." She thought that was a silly thing to do in June. After all, who thinks about heating in the summer? "When's the best time to buy an air conditioner?" I asked her. Out of season, of course. You get the best deal. Same with heating systems: buy out of season and save! Lowell Gas Company is offering special pre-season prices in June, and their experts have plenty of time to come to your house and help you determine which efficient heating system will best meet your needs. Natural gas is the most efficient energy you can use according to the U.S. Council on Environmental Quality. A new heating system will conserve energy and at the same time give you added comfort. Come to the Lowell Gas Company showroom, or better yet call 458-3171 for Shop At Home service and get all the facts and figures on an energy efficient, BRYANT total comfort heating system. My wife thought I was crazy... now she thinks I'm a genius!

Five awards for Wilmington Skaters

The sweet aroma of success was certainly evident on Sunday, June 6, as five members of Wilmington's Figure Skating Club brought home first, second and third place trophies from the Massachusetts Inter-Club Figure Skating Council Competition which took place at the Nashua Valley Ice Olympia in Danvers.

The competition was divided into two segments - freestyle of which there were 11 divisions and an interpretative category which consisted of seven divisions. These divisions were then broken down according to age and level of skating achievement. In all, there was a total of 123 participants in the events.

In the freestyle category, Barbara Baker of Reading capped a first place in the Special Juvenile B2 Division while Robin MacDonald of Westdale Avenue received a third place trophy in the same event.

Leanne Smith of Woburn St., who just a few weeks ago placed third in the Worcester Open Competition, pulled up to a strong second place in a field of eight competitors in the Preliminary Girls A3 Division.

Interpretative Competition is new to the area. The purpose is to allow skaters the freedom to develop a completely individualized skating program to unfamiliar music which is played for them just three times before they perform before the audience. All skaters must be able to express a feeling for music and be able to improvise moves that compliment the rhythm. Suitable music was pre-selected by a committee for each division.

Taking second place in the Girls A Interpretative Division was Catherine Ryan of Hathaway Road who skated a lovely improvised program and exhibited a definite flair for this type of competition.

In the Girls C Division, Margaret McGowan of North Reading took the third place trophy and conveyed to the audience her utter enjoyment for this event while interpreting some rather difficult music.

Other club members who competed during the day were: Cindy Cornish, Gail Hanson, Sharon Lord, Correy Mungillo, Lynne Murphy, Kathy Rice and Mary Beth Thiel - a fine representation from Wilmington who all found the experience thoroughly enjoyable.

The Wilmington Figure Skating Club is one of 15 member clubs of the Massachusetts Inter-Club Figure Skating Council whose prime purpose is to promote interest and activities for the amateur sport of figure skating.

This first venture into a council sponsored competition was a tremendous success and the Wilmington Club is proud to have been a part of it.

The Old Burial Ground

Over three quarters of a century ago James Kelley, a man who called himself a "scrivener" researched the vital statistics of Wilmington, and produced a volume entitled Births, Marriages and Deaths in Wilmington. More commonly it is just known as Kelley.

As a part of his work Jim Kelley studied all the gravestones in the old cemetery, and the new ones too. His work is a valuable part of the town records.

William G. Meyer has been a resident of Wilmington for about 20 years. He lives on Pilling Road and is dedicated to historical research and military research. Among other things one can note that when the Wilmington Company of Minutemen was reconstituted, a few years ago, it was Capt. William G. Meyer who was in command.

Bill Meyer has carefully plotted every gravestone, in the old cemetery, the one that lies beside the Wilmington Congregational Church. He has studied the inscriptions and cross-indexed them.

The result is a valuable record for future generations and some readable literature for the present one.

There is a sketch, a copy of a map of 1877, of the old cemetery. It also shows the sites of the carriage sheds which were beside the Congregational Church, and of the old hearse house, which is now off Middlesex Ave. and is now called by many the "bug house."

Meyer dedicated his study to the Wilmington Historical Commission.

He has a few recommendations. One is that there should be a sign erected, telling the passerby of the old cemetery. Another is that the site of the first church in Wilmington should be identified by a sign. It would be difficult to argue with either suggestion.

Meyer noted the number of deaths which occurred in a four month period in 1738. Probably the cause was small pox. Eighteen persons died, in those four months, and this in a town which was perhaps of less than 300 population. One of those persons, he notes, was Samuel Dummer Esq., the first Moderator of Wilmington.

Mr. Dummer was a brother of the Governor (Lieutenant-Governor) of Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Meyer notes that the graves were on an east-west axis, and declares that this was customary. This is an interesting observation.

In the Colonial Days homes were built "Square with the Universe," so that the home faced to the south, and thus absorbed, as much as possible, the heat of the sun. It was an important point, in the building of a home.

The writer did not realize that churches too, were built "Square to the Universe," but it may have been so.

The gravestones in the old cemetery in Wilmington were at right angles to the church. The church, it can be said, was "Square with the Universe," so that Mr. Meyer's observation is a true one.

Meyer also indexed the names

Collection of Garbage and Rubbish in the Town of Wilmington

A new garbage and rubbish collection starts Monday, June 21, for the convenience of Wilmington residents. The first day will be for residents of the Silver Lake area.

A contract has been made with the Greenwood Disposal Company, a division of Browning Ferris Industries. This contract is approved by state and local health boards.

General Information

All residential refuse containers must be constructed of metal, plastic or some other impervious material, and have a cover. Such containers are not to be over 30 gallons in size.

Garbage and rubbish should be combined in the same container. Garbage should be in plastic bags, or may be wrapped in newspaper. Pasteboard cartons, paper bags, and wooden crates are not suitable receptacles, to meet health standards, and will not be collected by the contractor.

Wilmington has been divided into five areas, for rubbish collection etc. On the day that collections are to be made, on your street, you should have the containers on the sidewalk by 7 a.m., at the curb if there is one, or by the side of the road, if there is no sidewalk.

There is no restriction as to the number of refuse containers from each Wilmington resident.

There will be no collection on Holidays - Fourth of July, etc.

There will be two special collections, one in the spring and one in the fall, similar to the pickups previously maintained by the town through the Highway Department.

There is, however, an added service, in that the contractor will pick up bulky household items, as part of his regular weekly collection. This includes refrigerators, stoves, furniture, etc.

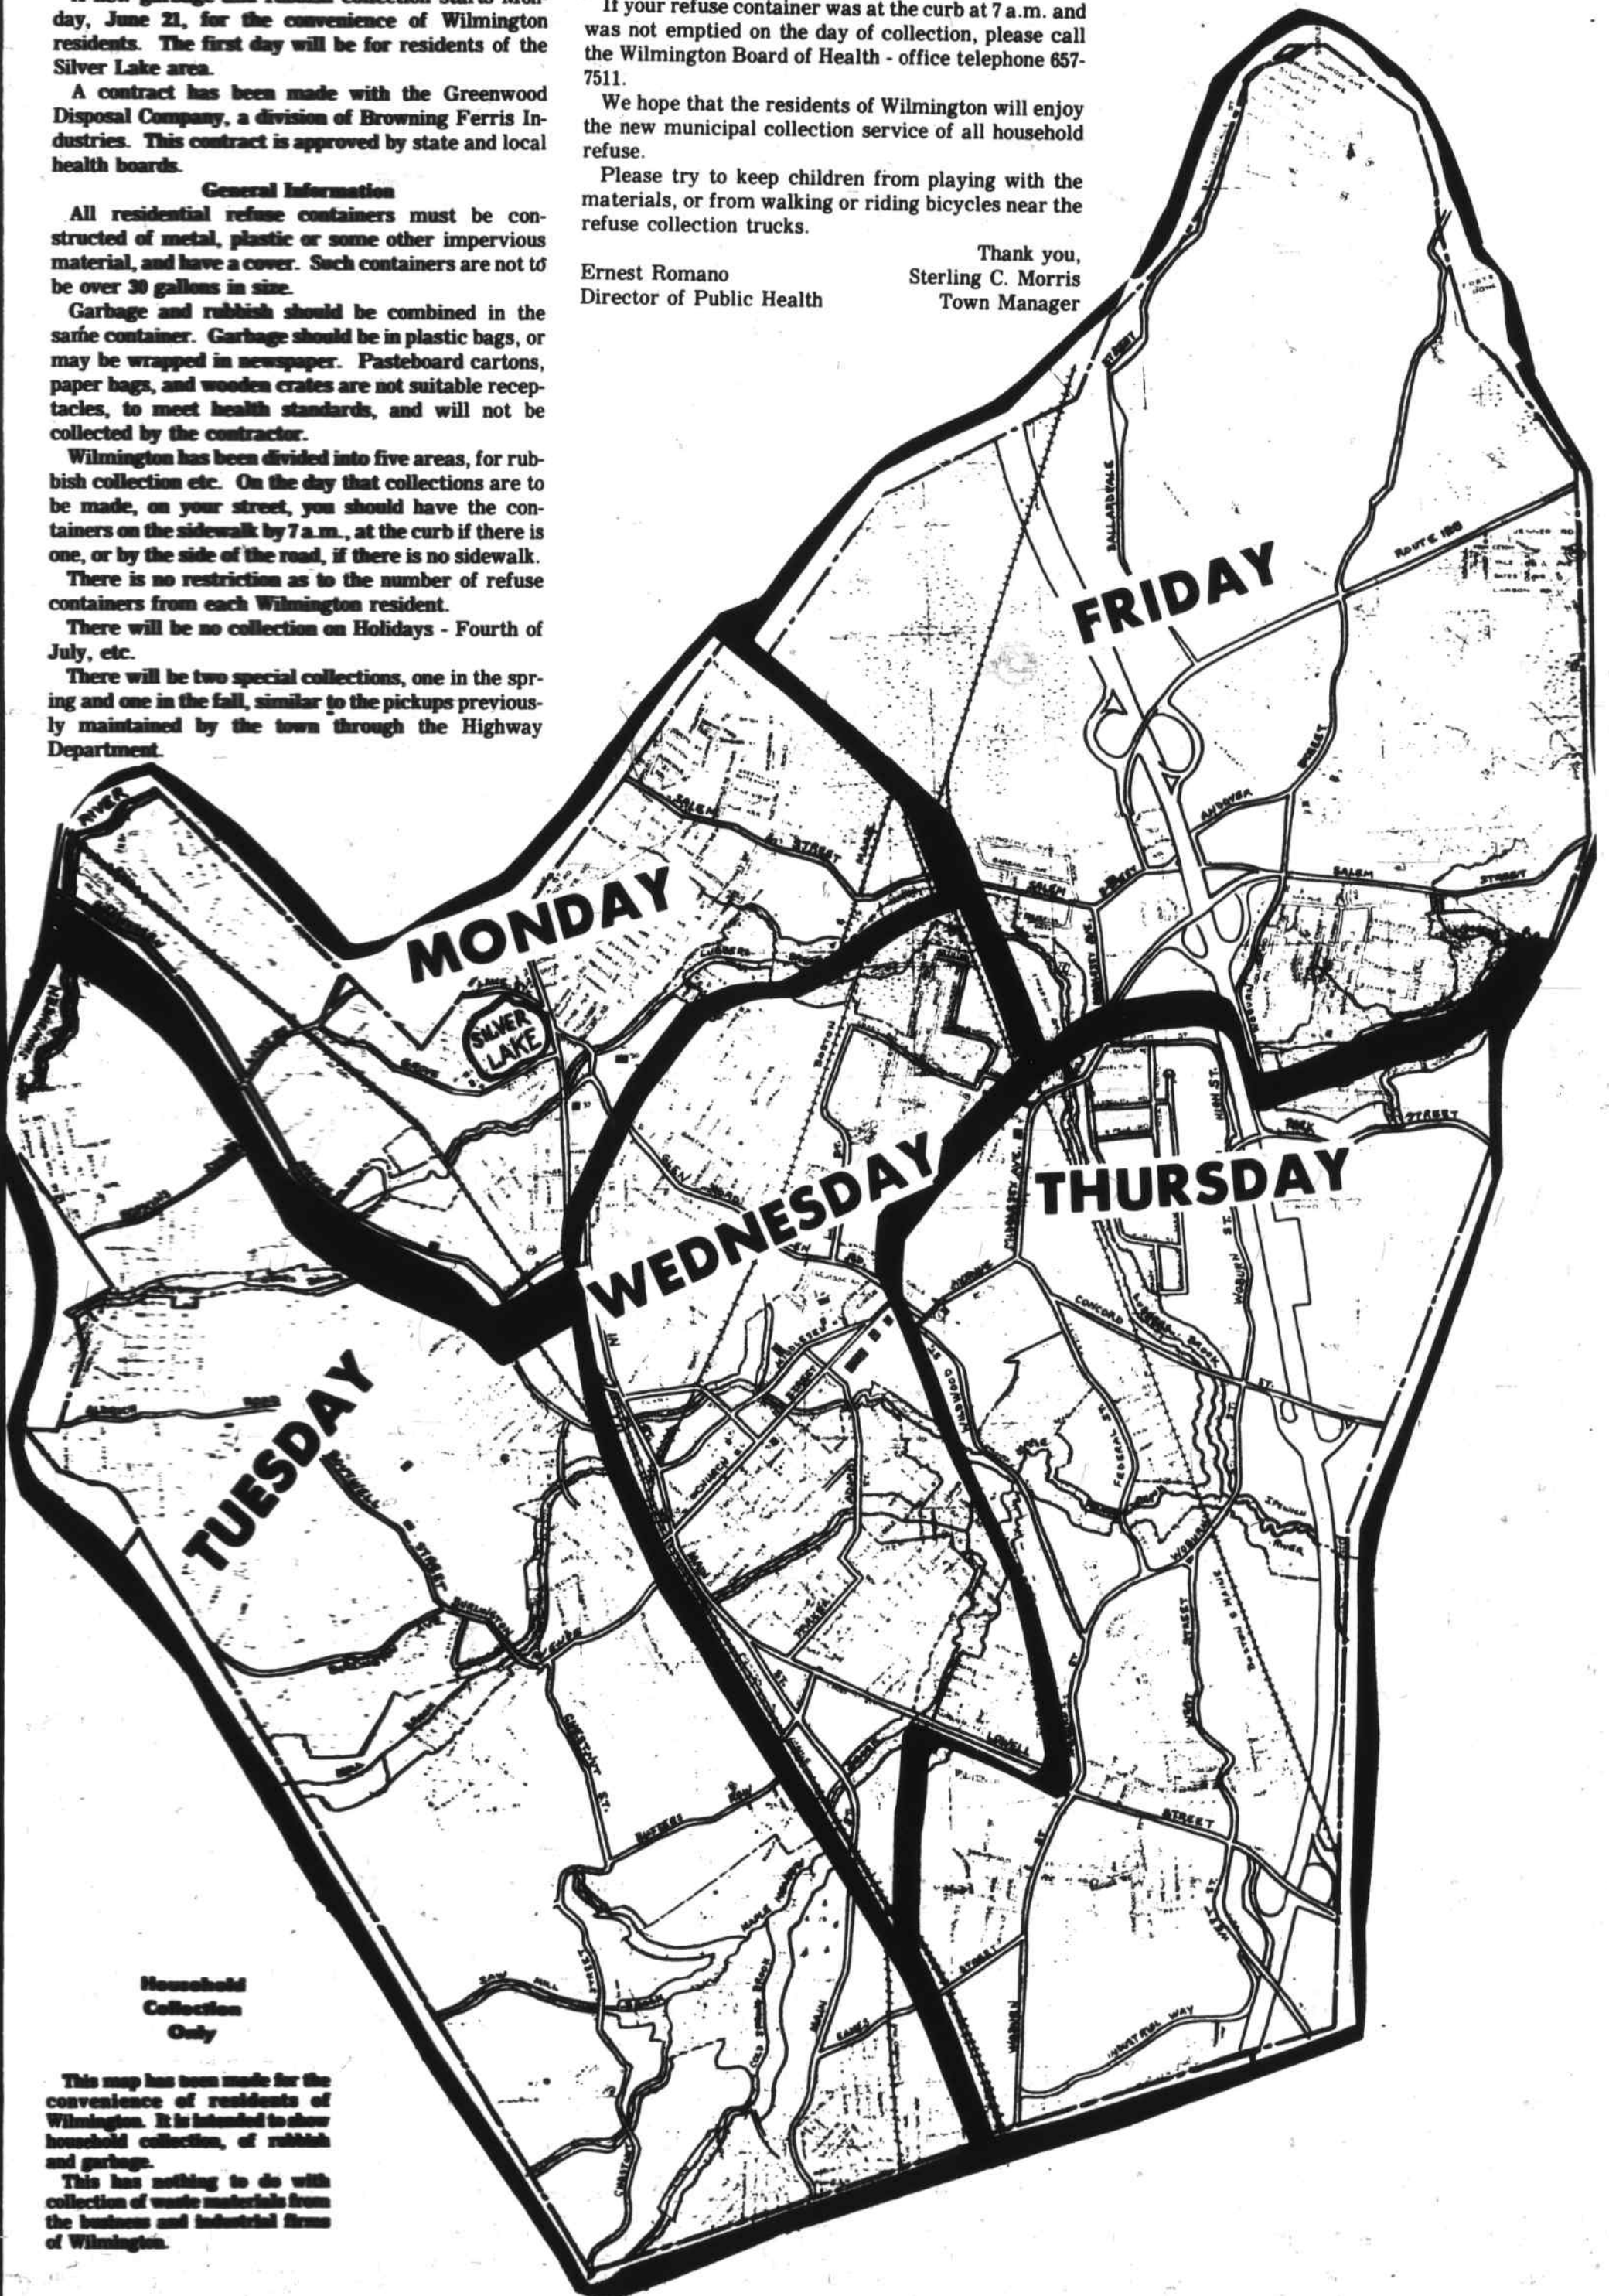

If your refuse container was at the curb at 7 a.m. and was not emptied on the day of collection, please call the Wilmington Board of Health - office telephone 657-7511.

We hope that the residents of Wilmington will enjoy the new municipal collection service of all household refuse.

Please try to keep children from playing with the materials, or from walking or riding bicycles near the refuse collection trucks.

Ernest Romano
Director of Public Health

Thank you,
Sterling C. Morris
Town Manager

This map has been made for the convenience of residents of Wilmington. It is intended to show household collection, of rubbish and garbage.

This has nothing to do with collection of waste materials from the business and industrial firms of Wilmington.

Possibly the carpenters also cultivated hops

During the past few weeks there has been discussion of the steeple of the Congregational Church in Wilmington. It was rebuilt, and Benjamin Buck paid for it. There is a suspicion that the steeple is not straight, or, as a carpenter might say, 'not plumb'.

Arthur Smith, Woburn Street contractor, now has supplied direct evidence. The steeple, positively, is not straight. Looking at it from Middlesex Avenue, it leans over to the right, and it seems the distance is over one foot.

Mr. Smith has three young men working for him, conveniently called the Smith Brothers. One is named Gubellini and another is named Mullarky, but the Smith Brothers they are.

During the past 10 days, they erected a steel staging around the church. Steel staging is constructed so that it goes up straight. If it isn't straight it doesn't go up. The top staging level was, for a matter of record, 66 feet above the ground.

The center line of that staging was exactly in agreement with the center line of the front door of the church.

A photograph, taken from in front of the town hall, shows how that center line also goes through the point where the clock hands meet. Above that, though, it does not go through the center line of the steeple.

By the time the centerline is at the top of the louvres, at the level where in is the church bell and about a thousand pigeons, it can be seen to be no longer on center. There is a key stone, of wood, above the arch, and it is to the right of the center.

Project that center line up to the top of the steeple, and it is out in space.

It would appear that the steeple was so constructed. It is leaning, so it seems, to the east and north, and it is not easy to come up with a reason for so leaning that will satisfy critical analysis.

Benjamin Buck, he who paid for the construction of the steeple in 1876, made his money in the cultivation of hops, many years earlier. It is entirely possible, as a guess, to say that some of the carpenters who worked on that steeple a century ago might also have been, in a manner of speaking, cultivating hops.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH OF WILMINGTON: Showing the steel staging erected during the past 10 days. Notice the center line. Project it straight up, and it does not follow the line of the steeple.

Scouts to be honored at St. Thomas Sunday

Three Boy Scouts are to be honored, at the 9:30 a.m. Mass Sunday at St. Thomas Church.

Ralph Burpee, Tony Caperci and Jim Miceli will be honored for having received the Ad Altare Dei Award, the highest award given by the Boy Scouts to Catholic boys who have qualified in religious studies relating to God, the community, the home, and humanity.

Two Cub Scouts are also to be honored at the 9:30 Mass. Stephen Hartka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hartka of 40 Marcia Road, and John Lesperance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lesperance of 759 Woburn Street will be the recipients of the Parvuli Dei Award. Both are Cub Scouts of Pack 63.

The Parvuli Dei Award is the highest given jointly by the Archdiocese of Boston and the Boy Scouts of America to Cub Scouts in recognition of their advancement in religious knowledge and spiritual formation. The purpose is to help boys to become more aware of the presence of the Lord in daily life, in the home, and the community.

on the gravestones, and this produces a list of graves in which the names of Buck and Eames cannot be found, and of the Butters family only one name. This was not an obvious fact before Meyer began his work.

Those three families were in Wilmington for half a century or more before there was a Wilmington. Their graves were in other places, even after the cemetery was laid out. Either that, or someone stole the gravestones.

For many years there was a gravestone at the back door of the Asa Sheldon place, on Woburn Street, Wilmington. It marked the burial of the first wife of Daniel Eames. The writer thinks that the stone disappeared, at the time the asphalt driveway was placed at the home.

Bits & Pieces

Birthdays

Nearly, but not quite overlooked was the fact that Jeff Lyman of Meadow Lane, Wilmington observed his 14th birthday on June 11.

Joey MacEachern of Kirk St., Wilmington will be serenaded by friends and relatives on June 22.

Ruby E. Cushing of Marion St., will be celebrating on June 23.

Also celebrating on June 23 will be Miriam Sullivan of Lake St., Wilmington. Mrs. Sullivan will be observing her special day for the 81st time.

On June 24, Ray McNamara of Middlesex Ave., will be a year wiser.

At least three Wilmington residents will be celebrating their special day on June 25: Donna Counts of Glen Rd., who will be celebrating for the 91st time; Theresa Marie Woods of Adams St., who will blow out the candles for the second time and Traffic Supervisor, Helen Downs of Tuplin Ave., who isn't saying how many times she's observed the day before.

According to the records at hand, at least six Wilmington residents will be assisting each other at turning another page on June 26:

Meredith Elia, of Salem St. who will be 19; Cory Washak of West St.; David Balestrieri of Eames St., who will be celebrating for the third time; Tammy Darling, also of Eames St.; Tom Bromander of Hilltop Rd., who will be 19 and Paul Kelly of Eighth St., Tewksbury.

Dennis Ford of Westdale Ave., Wilmington will observe his special day on June 27 and will share greetings with Liane McAuliff of Dadant Drive. Liane's birthday was erroneously placed on June 17 last week. It is actually, June 27 when Liane will be celebrating for the second time.

Also celebrating on June 27 will be Brownell Malone of Mass. Ave., Wilmington.
